

Dear GEAA Member Group Leaders,

Check out this event: Texas Water Symposium

It is taking place at the Witte Museum on January 27th at 7pm. The symposium is free and open to the public.

With a rapidly growing population, Texas needs a lot of water and a lot of energy. These resources are usually considered separately. The Texas Water Symposium goes deep into the complex issues of water and energy, and explains the critical interrelated aspects of these two essential resources.

Hope to see you there!
